1. In order to suppress guerrilla activities in Kwangtung, Communist authorities have formed suppression and pacification committees in the administrative districts of the province. The committees are made up of the local administrative commissioner, the directors of military control commissions of sub-districts, and commanders of garrison troops.*
2. Each hsien and village has also formed a Reform Committee (Tzu Hsin Wei Yuan Hui, 促進委員會) to promote the defection of Nationalist guerrillas. Committee members are the hsien and village magistrates and the directors of the hsien military control commission.
3. Nationalist guerrillas who have defected to the Communists are also used to contact guerrilla bands and later form them into militia units. This program is under the direction of LO Feng-hsiang (羅鳳翔) in the East River area, MO Xialung (莫夏龍) in the North River area, and CHOU Han-ling (周漢令) in the West River area.
4. In mid-November 1950, guerrillas in the Liuchou (109-16, 24-18), Kuailin (110-10, 23-20) area were preventing the collection of taxes in kind by local authorities. As a result, the Kwangsi Provincial Food Bureau held a meeting in Kuailin to discuss counter-measures and means of collecting taxes.
5. In early December the Kwangsi Public Security Bureau announced the prohibition of all wireless communication except by government and military organs.

25X1A [REDACTED] Comment. Military measures for the suppression of guerrillas have been reported in a number of areas also. [REDACTED]
